PIERCE ART + DESIGN

2017 has been a very full year! traffic jam galleries just keeps getting busier, we have a full schedule for 2018 which will include some exciting 'pop-up' exhibitions. With my own practice I am currently working across a variety of mediums and two new series have developed through my impasto work titled 'Icecream Cake' and 'The Simple Life'. I have been fortunate in having made the finals this year of the Hunters Hill Art Prize and Gosford Art Prize for painting and the Fisher's Ghost Art prize for sculpture. Over the holiday season I will continue developing the 'works on paper' featuring the Glass House Mountains and preparing for a thematic exhibition at traffic jam galleries titled 'The Beach'. Two solo exhibitions are slated for 2018, one in Sydney and the other in Newcastle .... very exciting!

NEW WORKS

Further developing my beach scenes. These new works of differing sizes are a way for me to capture the excitement and playful lifestyle that is on show along Australia's magnificent coastline. In depicting a leisurely day spent by the sea I employ a largely cool, gelato inspired, colour saturated palette full of fun and loads of paint!. The tiny, baby (18 x 18cm) sized works look like pound cakes with masses of icing, duly titled 'Icecream Cakes'.

With some of these beach scenes the defining line where the ocean meets the land becomes almost imperceptible, a conscious blending of earth and water. In my works I thickly apply and overlap scales of paint to create exceptionally textured landscapes. Lately I have incorporated additional mediums such as fragments of molded plastic chairs and mirror gloss resin. Works in this vein will feature in the upcoming exhibition 'The Beach' at traffic jam galleries in Feb' 18

Recently completed painting titled ' I'm Not Myself' - 120 x 120 cm, acrylic impasto, inks, pen and mirror gloss resin on canvas on ply.

This work and others are currently on display at traffic jam galleries in Neutral Bay
